shareholders in the above Company was held at the Office of the Company this afternoon. Present: E. B. Bellion, Esq., in the chair; Hon. F. B. Johnson, Messrs
Reimers, W. H. Forbes, G. Sharp, Wm.
Roberts, H. L. Noronha, Hanschild, O.
Brien (ad.), Linstead, Pollichwalla, A.
Smith, Marfield, and P. A. da Costa (Secretary).

The notice convening the meeting having
been read.

The Chairman said that, as the report and accounts had been before the Shareholders for some time past, he presumed they would permit him to take them as read. Their statements were at present in an efficient state, and they would all shortly be in good working order, and all contingencies and repairs would be fully met by the amount now carried forward to new working account. The Kiukiang and Spurk had extensive repairs done to them some twenty months ago. The Powan, considering the object for which she was built, had acquitted herself very creditably indeed on both the Macao and Canton waters, and had justified the expenditure on her a short time ago.

The White Cloud had entailed a moderate expenditure on the resources of the Company, and this is now out of dock. The Kiukiang had just been laid up, but from the estimate of their Superintending Engineer, they might safely rely that the outlay on her would not be more than $12,000. Considering the keen competition they had to contend with on both lines, and keeping in view the extraordinary expenses they had been obliged to provide for, some of which appeared in the present accounts,

they would doubtless look upon the result of last half-year's operations as highly satisfactory. They were aware of the misadventure experienced in connection with a certain recent enactment of the Legislature of this Colony; he was, however, glad to be able to inform them that the matter was under the consideration of the Governor, and they could only hope that His Excellency, with his usual kindness, would do it right to remit the fine, of course retaining a nominal sum for the unintentional breach of the Ordinance. The Company continued to enjoy the support of the major part of the community, and they hoped always to do so in the future. He would be glad to answer any questions put to him. (No one responding, the Chairman proposed that the report and accounts
be adopted.)

Mr. T. G. Linstead seconded this proposition; and it was unanimously carried.

Mr. W. H. Forbes proposed, and Dr.
O'Brien seconded, that the nomination of Mr.
F. B. Johnson as a Director be confirmed; and the motion having been unanimously carried, Mr. Johnson thanked the meeting.

Mr. Reimers proposed, and Mr. G. Sharp seconded, that the retiring auditors (Messrs H. Smith and L. Hanschild) be re-elected;
which resolution was carried unanimously.

The Chairman thanked those present for their attendance, and intimated that the dividend would be payable from and after Monday next.

The meeting then separated.

HONGKONG HOTEL COMPANY, LIMITED.

The Ordinary Meeting of Shareholders was held at the Hongkong Hotel at 4 o'clock this afternoon. There were present Messrs Bellion (in the chair), Reimers, Grobier,
Pereira, Dittmar, Pollichwalla, Marfield,
Landstein, H. Cohen, Vaucher, Jorey, Cox,
Hopkins, Ethel, and G. Sharp.

The notice convening the meeting having been read, the Chairman said:—Gentlemen

—Our report and accounts for the half year having been published, you have doubtless perused them and will allow me to take them as read. You will observe that we have followed the old routine we have adopted of paying off a portion of our loan and declaring a small dividend to the shareholders.

This course we intend to adopt until the amount standing on the wrong side of our books shall have been liquidated. The Directors sitting at this Board after this has been done may then deem it fit to make you a larger return on your investment. Some alarming rumours have been circulating in this Colony, concerning the state of this building, and it is my duty to refute them.

I am glad to be able to say that this is one of the best constructed buildings in the Colony, and that it is in a most efficient condition at this moment. The estimated cost of a thorough overhaul of the building, including all superfluous repairs, will not exceed from $2,000 to $3,000 (approximately). It is gratifying to me to be able to say that we have participated in the enhancement of landed property in this Colony, and that we have received an offer of $170,000 for the Hotel from one individual.
Promises of this description and these dimensions are not easily marketable, but when they do become so and we are offered a sum equivalent to all your shares, it will better suit a company to keep them. In other words, if one individual was prepared to pay such a handsome sum for the property, the value at which it stands in our books is not excessive; and your directors thought it desirable to decline the offer. This is all the business we have to do, gentlemen, and I shall be happy to answer any question.

Mr. Landstein proposed, and Mr. Vaucher seconded, that Messrs Wm. Reimers, and F.
Grobier, the retiring directors, be re-elected;
carried unanimously.

Mr. Reimers proposed, and Mr. Grobier seconded, that Messrs A. E. Vaucher and H. Cohen be re-elected as Auditors; carried unanimously.

Mr. Vaucher then asked if the Chairman could say that any better offers had been made for the lease of premises than they had yet been receiving.

Mr. Landstein said he did not think the Directors would be justified in giving information on this head, but said that they were sanguine of getting much better offers.

The Chairman quite concurred with Mr.
Landstein.

Mr. G. Sharp then proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, and the meeting separated.

PUBLIC EXAMINATION OF THE GOVERNMENT CENTRAL SCHOOL.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

The pupils attending the Government
Central School were examined this forenoon; the

Now it would, I think, be foolish for us to shut our eyes to facts of this kind. The examination could hardly be simpler than it was; the clerkship to be given away at the rate of 480 per month—and the result was very disappointing; but I know repeat what at that time I ventured to put into a minute which was published in the Government Gazette—that in looking over the papers and report of the examination, though I regretted the result, I yet felt that the Chinese students who competed at that examination had shown great intelligence and industry; and I had every hope that at a subsequent examination some of them would be successful. I have no doubt that in any subsequent examination some of them will be successful, but it is important, for any scheme of examination to establish shall be in accordance with the educational system of the Colony, and brought down to the standard existing here. And on this subject I am bound to say that my friend, Mr. Stewart, mentioned just now that there was an appointment in the Chinese Customs given by Mr. Bredon, just before he left for the North recently, which appointment has been awarded to a Chinese youth, whom I see here on my right. It is fair to mention that some of the best pupils in this school declined to take that appointment. It does not at all follow that the best pupils of this school or any other school should aspire to Government appointments; I would not recommend the youth of this Colony or of any Colony to look forward to Government employment as the sole object of their education. Fortunately we live in the centre of a great mercantile community; and I believe that the small number who competed for the clerkship to which I have been referring is to a great extent owing to the fact that many who could undoubtedly have passed that examination with credit, preferred, and very rightly preferred to devote themselves to other pursuits. Now in giving whatever appointments may be at the disposal of the Governor of this Colony I shall still adhere, within certain safe limits, to the arrangements already announced, but at the same time, I believe I shall be justified from time to time in selecting for appointments those young men who may be recommended to me by Mr. Stewart or by other competent gentlemen in the Colony. Any occasional appointment to open competition cannot fail to do good, but at the same time retaining in my hands a certain portion of that patronage will not, I believe, be detrimental to the public service of Hongkong (Applause).

You are all aware, ladies and gentlemen, that the subject of education is not one upon which people in this Colony have been silent. For many years past it has been discussed in every shape and form, and, indeed, I think I was not many hours in the Colony—before I went down to the Council Chamber to read Her Majesty's Commission—I was advised by the intelligent organs of the press to announce what was called my policy on the subject of education. Well, I had other things to do, and in addition to that I thought it well to pay some attention to the subject, to study it on the spot, before I ventured to express any opinion. And what is my policy? Well, it is to promote education, and I may say in one word I shall be most happy during the five or six years that it may be my pleasure to be here, most happy to do all in my power to promote the success of this institution, the Central School. (Applause.) When I visited here the other day and saw Mr. Falconer and the other gentlemen going through the daily routine of their duties, I was struck by some incidents which it is well for us to bear in mind, because they suggest the possibility of improvements which I know Mr. Stewart has at heart. I visited one large class room, indeed, a sort of double class room on the other side of that passage. In that room I should think there were 130 or 140 Chinese youths being instructed by three Chinese teachers. Now I found that they were reading the Chinese Classics; I found that the three Chinese teachers were instructing them in the Chinese Classics, had, themselves, no knowledge of the English language; and of these 140, or 150 pupils I suppose I should be accurate in saying that not half speak English—Mr. Stewart tells me that not one of them speaks English. Now those pupils, I was very glad to see, were reading the Chinese Classics by the aid of Chinese teachers. During the whole of the year we have had 610 pupils attending this school. I asked my friend, Mr. Stewart, this morning how many of these were able to speak English, and he said about 50 or 60. Now these are facts of great interest for us to know. They point to that which I say Mr. Stewart above all men desires. They point to the desirability of our endeavouring to keep the pupils who leave this school a little longer in the school. The system unfortunately is that, after learning perhaps what we might call only a smattering of knowledge, many of the pupils leave the school and go at once into business houses. I believe Mr. Stewart will be able to suggest to me means by which we may induce the pupils to devote a longer period to their school studies—I do not mean a longer period each day, but a greater number of years. But he also suggests something else. With whom do these boys, that I now see before me, mix when they leave the school? How many English-speaking companions do they have? I see, very few, very few. In this Colony, and in this respect it is unlike Singapore, you do not meet with many Chinese, who, in the ordinary course of business, can speak or write English. I think one of our principal duties as educationists must be to increase the number of English speaking and English writing Chinese inhabitants of Hongkong. I believe we will be able to do that not only by means of this valuable institution but also by the other educational agencies in this Colony. Now Mr. Stewart has placed in my hands a list of the 148 pupils of this school who left the school during last year, and I find on glancing through it that many of the pupils left the school to obtain really valuable employments in life. I find that the first pupil is now a master in this very school; another is a clerk in one of our leading mercantile houses, another employed in a glass and china shop, another has become a compositor, and will doubtless make an immense fortune; the compositors are not the poorest class in this Colony—another has become an assistant in his father's business, several have become clerks in the Chamber of Commerce and to various gentlemen of the Colony, some of them have gone into business on their own account; one of them I see has become a medical student—I read that with great pleasure; but on looking a little closer at the list, I see that he is not

Chinese boy who has become a medical student. And this brings me to a suggestion that I have to make to Mr. Stewart. I should like very much to ask Mr. Stewart whether it might be possible, in connection with this institution, to do anything in the way of promoting medical education amongst the Chinese. (Applause.) Now we all know that there is in this Colony a large and very valuable institution called the Tang Wah Hospital. Can we in any way combine the clinical instruction which might be received in that hospital with a little instruction in physiology in this school? Will it be possible for Mr. Stewart, having consulted with the Colonial Surgeon and with some of our medical friends and the Committee of that Hospital, will it be possible for him to frame a scheme by which we might have some Chinese trained to a knowledge of medicine and surgery? If he succeeds in putting a practical plan before me, I certainly will consult my honourable friends on the Council as to providing a fund for carrying that plan into effect. (Applause.)

Now I am bound as Governor of this Colony to say that there is one object of public instruction that, above all others, should engage my attention. Nothing is so universally recognized as the fact that education is the greatest deterrent to crime, and therefore it is my duty to consider how far our educational system co-operates with the Government in the repression and prevention of crime; and on that subject I noticed a paragraph in the last report of my friend Mr. Stewart, which undoubtedly is a very serious one. At the end of that report is mentioned the fact that whilst, I think he says, there are 16,000 children in this Colony, 4,000 and odd only are attending school, and that deducting those who are under the age of six years, there are 12,000 children of an age to attend school who are attending no school whatever in this Colony. Where are they? Well, as you go along towards East Point you can see them playing in the streets. I say it is my first duty to endeavour, with the assistance of Mr. Stewart, to educate as many of these now uneducated children as we can—(Applause); and therefore I contemplate consulting my Council upon the establishment in this Colony of an industrial school, and of extending the reformatory system, such as it is at this moment. It is our duty to do so; a duty we owe to the children, a duty we also owe to the taxpayers of this Colony, to protect them against a criminal class growing up among them. It is our duty on all hands to take steps to diminish that number of 12,000 that Mr. Stewart tells us are receiving no education. (Applause.)

I may tell you in regard to the very last Colony that I had the opportunity of governing, only a few weeks ago, was looking over a parliamentary return, laid before the House of Commons, in which it was stated by the Legislature of that Colony that one in eighteen of the population was attending school. In this Colony the number is only, so far as I have been able to ascertain, one in fifty-two, so that there is a very large margin for public instruction. We have much to do, and crowded as this hall is to-day, we must have many halls like it to fill before the public instruction of Hongkong will be on the same satisfactory basis as I have seen it in other places. These are facts which it is desirable for us to remember. It is by knowing them and by co-operating together that we can hope to bring about in this Colony that state of public instruction of which the Government ought not to be ashamed. And I may say this is especially our duty here upon the confines of China—speaking in the presence of perhaps one of the most distinguished living scholars of China and Chinese, my friend, the Rev. Dr. Kitel, who will bear me out when I say that the instruction of the people, no matter how rude and elementary, the instruction of the children of the people has been carried out in that great Empire, and has for centuries been carried out, in a mode which should set us and all European countries an example. Even in little Chinese villages on the other side of the water you see the boys, little boys, attending school. It may be that they learn, from our point of view, very little—perhaps they only get off by heart a few moral and ethical precepts, but they are kept at school away from the streets, and whatever the results may be it is manifest that the peace and good order of that vast country is in no small degree dependent upon that mass of public instruction which is thrown over the whole empire.

This, ladies and gentlemen, is I think a fitting opportunity for me, in again congratulating Mr. Stewart and the pupils who have obtained these prizes to-day, it is a fitting opportunity for me to say that whatever discussions may have taken place in this Colony, and they have ranged pretty warmly now for a good many years, I believe we are all united in an earnest desire to promote the public instruction of the people; and I believe that when we come to examine a little closer into what are called the differences that exist it will be found that they are not very deep, and that they should not keep us apart. On a recent occasion during the absence of my right reverend friend, Bishop Burdon, I had the pleasure of distributing the prizes at St. Paul's College. What I then said I now repeat—that the Government of this Colony is above the quarrels, disputes and polemics of educationists, and the only desire of Government is to do full justice and to give fair play to all parties, and it is not because the Government gives assistance one day to one particular party, that it is to be debilitated next day from assisting properly, prudently and wisely, another party. So long as we can promote public instruction in this Colony, I think you will all agree with me in carrying out that educational policy here of perfect fairness to all, and not only will we be doing that which educates the people, but what is perhaps a secondary, but not unimportant, result, we will restore a little more harmony into our educational polemics. (Applause.)

The Rev. Dr. Kitel said—After the admirable words which have fallen from H. E.'s lips on a subject which all of us have at heart it is difficult for me to add anything. What H. E. said about education in general touched a chord responding in every soul, for all are anxious to see their fellow creatures educated somehow. One point, however, which no doubt was included in H. E.'s programme for the education of the youth of this Colony, but not distinctly set forth, I beg leave to point out. It is the education of female children. Among the large number of children, whom H. E. referred to as hitherto left beyond the pale of education, are many thousands (probably 8000) of girls for whom scarcely anything has been done yet in the way of education. I earnestly hope H. E. will include these, the future mothers of future generations, in his educational scheme, which will then be not excellent only, as we all feel it is, but complete. No doubt I am expressing the feelings of all here when I say that the education of the Colony is in excellent hands.

Mr. Stewart thanked His Excellency for his attendance, and the proceedings terminated.

SUPREME COURT.

IN ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.
(Before His Lordship the Chief Justice, Sir JOHN SMITH.)
Jan. 25, 1878.

REGINA v. CHARLES NEWMAN.

The prisoner was indicted on one count for assault occasioning actual bodily harm to Inspector W. F. Whitehead on the 23rd December last.

The Attorney General, the Hon. G. Phillips, instructed by Mr. Sharp, the Crown Solicitor, appeared to prosecute.

Mr. Haylar, Q.C., instructed by Mr. Bredon, appeared for the defence.

The following Special Jury was empanelled—Messrs D. Gillies, A. Newton, W. C. van Pelt, Sr., E. Nicolson, J. H. Scott, J. G. T. Haswell and A. Coxon.

The Attorney General in opening the case pointed out the nature of the indictment. It was for assault occasioning actual bodily harm. The injury need not be permanent, nor in the nature of grievous bodily harm; if it interfered with the prosecutor's health and comfort, it was sufficient. If the Jury was not satisfied with that, they could return a verdict of common assault. He then narrated the facts of the case.

Inspector W. F. Whitehead was called. I am Inspector of Brothels, having been so for four years next March. Previous to that I was a sergeant in H. M. 80th Regiment up to 3rd March 1874. I then obtained my discharge on my claiming. On the afternoon of the 22nd December I was in the office of Mr. Haylar, attending to a meeting of the Commission on the Contagious Diseases Ordinance. I left at 20 minutes to 6 p.m. I met Captain Walker of the steamer Norna. He went home with me on my invitation to dine with me. I had only a cup of coffee and a glass of water at dinner. That was all I had. About 10 minutes to 9 I left home with Captain Walker. I live at Baxter house, Gains Road. I and Capt. Walker went to Queen's Road as far as Acheson's shop; we stayed there about half an hour and then went to the Hongkong Hotel, arriving there about 10 minutes to 10 p.m. I had a glass of sherry there with Capt. Walker; that was the first glass of liquor I had during that day. I had not been drinking any kind of liquor during that month. We then went to the Oriental Hotel with Capt. Walker. We met Capt. Bumble there. There were a great many persons at the bar, ship engineers, chiefly, and officers of the ship. We went to the Bowling alley; there were 10 or 12 persons playing there. They were chiefly non-commissioned officers of the artillery. I looked on for half an hour, when Capt. Walker asked me to wait for him at the Hotel. After he left the game finished, and I joined in the next game. There are two alleys, and I played with four non-commissioned officers and one European policeman named Clare. I saw Newman, defendant, there. He played in the opposite alley. I left the house about 12 o'clock when the house closed. The proper hour for closing was 12 o'clock. Capt. Walker returned. I had seen Newman before, and I had been in his company on one or two occasions at the B. A. Sergeants' mess. That was the extent of my acquaintance with him. I had met him on one or two occasions at the Oriental, but I was never intimate with him. When I left the hotel, I was alone, but the four non-commissioned officers joined me at the door, viz: Sergeants Tomlin, Clark, Goodwin, and Gascogne. I went along with them as far as Peel Street. I parted with them at the junction of Peel Street. They went up Peel Street. I went along Wellington Street as far as Aberdeen Street. I had hired a chair at the Oriental, which followed me. I told the chair-coolies to wait under Noronha's wall until I came back. I went up Aberdeen Street, down into Gage Street, and there I was looking about. My duty called me to do so. It is my duty to detect unlicensed brothels. I stood at the corner of Graham Street and Gage Street for some 15 minutes, and then I walked back the same way I came to Aberdeen Street. On our way from the Oriental Hotel, I saw Inspector Horspool at the corner of Pottinger Street near Cassimboy's shop in Wellington Street. Newman was walking abreast me; he had joined us when we left the Oriental Hotel. Newman called out "Look out, boys, we shall soon be in the hands of the Police," as we passed Mr. Horspool. I do not believe that I spoke to Newman on coming out. I had a glass of soda water and a glass of beer, and there I was looking about. I was perfectly sober. Newman was not sober when he made use of that expression. The non-commissioned officers had been drinking, but they were neither drunk nor sober; I believe they were not drunk. When I parted with them in Wellington Street, I suspected where they were going to, and the house which they were entering. I did not see any one of them enter any house. Sergeants Goodwin and Wilson were the two men I last spoke to when I parted with them. Newman went up to Peel Street with the first four men (non-commissioned officers). When I was in Aberdeen Street the second time after having made my round alone, I went to Gage Street, when I heard a whistle. I ran down Aberdeen Street, going the street, running down Peel Street towards Queen's Road. There was loud talking in English. I went then towards Peel Street. At the corner I saw three men standing in the middle of the road in Peel Street. One of them then met me; he came towards me leaving the other two standing. That man was Newman. He said "you are just the man I wanted." I said "Indeed, what for?" He said "I am going to arrest you." I said "don't be so foolish, what are you talking about?" I was in plain clothes that evening. I had nothing in my hands. My hands were in my pockets. Newman immediately then collared me by my great coat collar with both hands and pushed me down on the ground on my back, with my two hands falling under me. One of the trousers pocket was torn. The two men continued standing at the junction of Peel Street and Wellington Street. Newman fell on me and placed his two knees on my chest. He struck me several times with his fist on my face. I called out for Police, when he put his thumb to my upper lip and poked his finger into my right eye. I tried to get off, and he got up one of his legs, keeping one knee on my chest; and in getting up he pressed his two hands on my chest. Whilst getting up he said, "I have got you now, you lime-jule fellow." "Lime jule man" is an American expression for an English man-of-war's man. Then he stamped his foot on my face, and the foot struck my mouth. He knocked four of my false teeth out of my mouth. I had these false teeth for seven years and they had never been moved. I did not then know that I had lost the teeth. I was conscious of the blow on my mouth, but I became unconscious till I found myself dragged along the street by Newman by the collar of my coat. Another man then came up and twisted my hands behind my back. I saw the man, but I did not know him. We all then went to the Central Station; I was taken in this way there. I was attacked about 1 o'clock a.m. I do not know what time was when I got to the Station. My face was swollen, and I could not see with my eyes. Newman spoke first at the Charge Room; he told the Sergeant (Stanton) to put me on the charge for assaulting him. Sergeant Stanton said he would not do anything of the sort, that I looked to be the one most assaulted. I then asked Sergeant Stanton to put Newman on the Charge Sheet. I had not discovered then that I had lost the four teeth, my mouth was so much swollen up. I felt very poorly all the time I was standing in the Charge Room. Sergeant Stanton said he could do nothing of the sort. I called for Inspector Horspool. He sent for him, and then I went to the water tap and washed my face. When I came back, Sergeant Stanton said Horspool was not in. He also said that as both of us were known, I had better take out a summons. P. C. Sangster was present. Newman immediately said to me "Do you call yourself an Inspector or a Policeman? I don't; I call you a—pung pang?" (an Inspector). Stanton then ordered him and another man and Lapeyale away from the Charge Room. They went out to the Police compound, and I followed them in about a minute afterwards and went into Wellington Street to where I had been struck, looking for my hat. I did not find my hat but found what I afterwards saw to be a set of bag pipes. I put them into my chair, which followed me. I kept the bag pipes until about afterwards by Kenneth Poole. I had not seen those bag-pipes until I saw them in the gutter. I never had any quarrel with Newman at any time. I did not strike him that night; I had no opportunity. I did not go into any house whatever from the time I left the Oriental until I went to the Station. I did not see Haddock, the Chief Officer of the Mangerton, that night. I never saw him before he gave his evidence, except when I sent for him to come to my house after I received a letter from Mr. Kennedy of the Horse Repository.

By Mr. Haylar—I am Chief Inspector of Brothels, and my duty leads me to know a good deal of brothels registered or otherwise. Newman was drunk and the soldiers were talkative that night, when we left the Oriental. There were four registered brothels in Wellington Street on the 22nd, and a great many suspected ones.

Mr. Haylar—Assuming yourself to be sober, do you think it a reputable thing for you to go with four or five drunken men down that street at that time of the night?

Answer—I consider it my duty to do so.

Q.—Do you consider it your duty to go about with drunken men in that neighbourhood at that time of the night?

A.—It is my system to detect unlicensed brothels.

Q.—Can you mention a single instance of your having detected an unlicensed brothel by going about with drunken men at night?

A.—Yes, on two occasions. I forget the dates.

Mr. Haylar: I must have dates.

Witness: I had two cases in 1874. I can refer to the books in the office.

Mr. Haylar desired him to refresh his memory by referring to his books.

Inspector Whitehead here asked Inspector Lee to fetch them from the Registrar General's office.

It was found that all judicial records had been sent to the Commission.

Mr. Haylar said if those were the books witness referred to, he could have them.

The Chief Justice said that portion of the cross-examination would be postponed.

Examination resumed:—I believe the Japanese brothel was No. 5 Peel Street. The chair I left in Wellington Street that night was a little further off Staveley Street. Peel and Staveley Streets are parallel. The Japanese brothel has a front entrance in Peel Street, and a back entrance at Staveley Street. The Japanese brothel was situated between that section of Peel Street lying between Gage Street and Wellington Street. The chair I left in Peel Street was distant from the back door of the Japanese brothel about 30 or 40 yards. I left my chair there because I was coming back to it on my way home. I passed Noronha's and went up Aberdeen Street. Aberdeen Street is not the best way to my house. My intention was to have visited the licensed houses in Hollywood Road that night. Sergeant Stanton gave evidence at the Police Court that I was drunk, but he modified it a good deal afterwards. I consider I was in a fit state to go to visit registered brothels that night before I was assaulted. The Oriental Hotel closed at 12 o'clock; I got into the chair and got out again after a few minutes. I went straight to Noronha's. It took me more than 10 minutes to get there, because I was walking leisurely; in ordinary walking, it would take 3 or 4 minutes. I talked for 2 or 3 minutes at corner of Peel Street with Sergeant Goodwin. I then went up Aberdeen Street, to Gage Street, Graham Street and back to Peel Street. It took me about 20 minutes to 30 minutes to do this. I do not know how long the tussle I had with Newman occupied; I had no idea. We walked up to the station; I have no idea what time it took to go to the Station. If any one had said that it was 10 minutes to 8 a.m. when we got to the Station, I could not say whether it was right or not. If that time was correct, I should have been about 1 hour and 40 minutes in the streets. I did not go into the Japanese brothel that night; I swear that. I do not know what suggested going to the house. When I got to the bottom of Peel Street, I heard one of the soldiers say "we will go up to the Japs." I have no interest whatever in the Japanese brothel. I know a man named Ho Atim. I know him as landlord of No. 34 Hollywood Road. He was once my landlord. The Japanese formerly lived in No. 34 Hollywood Road. I swear I did not take that house from Ho Atim for the Japanese women and paid rent for them for the house while they were there.

Mr. Haylar:—I advise you to be very cautious, Inspector.

Whitehead:—Yes, I am very cautious.

Continued:—I spoke to Ho Atim about taking the house. I asked him if the Japanese could move from 32 to 34, both being his houses. The Japanese women reported to me that Ho Atim had given them notice to quit No. 34. It is customary for these women to give notice to me and through me to the Registrar General of any removal. I did not go to Ho Atim to ask him to allow them to remain in No. 34.

Mr. Haylar:—Did you not ask Ho Atim whether he had not another house to which these women might remove, and did he not say "Yes, 12 Aberdeen Street?"

Answer:—Yes. I did not ask him the rent for that; he did not say $30 a month. He never spoke to me about the rent of any house in Aberdeen Street after I had ceased to be a tenant of his. I did not ask him for the key of that house, or of any house in the key. I never gave him the key back. No. 34 Hollywood Road was occupied by two European women before the Japanese. Their furniture was sold by distress for rent. I attended the sale and bought a good many things, among them arm-chairs and champagne glasses. These four arm-chairs and 13 champagne glasses (The Chief Justice: Very unlucky number. Mr. Haylar:—Yes, very unlucky indeed) were left in No. 34 Hollywood Road when the Japanese went into it. I sold the things to a company here named Soon Po. I heard that the Japanese women in Peel Street had sold out a few days after the row. I do not know the date. There were the four arm-chairs and glasses sold on this occasion. I was sick then; I did not see the things sold. I sold the things I bought the same day to a man at Soon Po's. I do not know that man's name; the shop is shut up now. I do not remember how much I sold the things for.

When the Court resumed, Mr. Whitehead was again cross-examined:—I bought a great many things at No. 84 Hollywood Road. I did not sell all to Soonpo. I took away the sedan chair, and sold it again. I may have bought two punkabs, but I don't remember. I bought about $100 worth. There was also a sale on the 15th April, and I bought a great many things then. I don't remember buying a pair of glasses. I don't remember any of the things I bought. I was a mixed up sale, Mr. Guedes selling the things on the 20th April, and I paid in one bill to Mr. Guedes. Soonpo is a Japanese; he speaks a little broken English. I did not know at the time that he had an interest in the house, I have heard it since. I don't remember when he broke up his establishment. On the 18th August 1874, I employed Inspector Horton to go with two men, one of whom was very drunk, to No. 34 Wellington Street to detect an unlicensed house. I accompanied them up D'Aguilar Street as far as the Roman Catholic Cathedral.

At this stage one of the Jury asked the Court for permission to enquire what was the object of this line of cross-examination, and if the dirty line of the Government was to be washed before the public, he did not know when the case would be over. He did not know what took place in 1874 had to do with a common assault case a month ago.

His Lordship said counsel had great latitude in cross-examination in order to discredit a witness, and instanced the case of the claimant in the Tichborne trial, which was a simple question of identity, and it took them back to 20 years.

Another of the Jurors said Mr. Haylar was sitting on the Commission, and had learnt a great many things, and if they were in porters into this case he did not know when it would be finished.

Mr. Haylar said this was a serious charge against him; there was not the slightest foundation for it. He was acting strictly within the instructions of his solicitor, and they had no reference whatever to the Commission. He did not ask for those cases; it was the prosecutor himself who asked for them, and the books happened to be in his custody. He asked a question of the prosecutor, who said he could not remember the date without the books, and they were produced.

After further discussion, it was held that a counsel for the defence had a right to cross-examine with great latitude. The Court continued:—I did not go into the Japanese brothel at all that night, did not have any drink there. I did not strike Newman; I did not see that he had a black eye at the station. I did not find the bag-pipes in my chair. I picked them up in the gutter.

Re-examined:—The Japanese women told me that the landlord wanted to turn them out of No. 32, and they asked me if they could remove into No. 34. The landlord happened to come in, and I asked him if they could. I do not know what rent they paid for No. 34. I did not hold myself responsible for the rent. I made about $20 by selling the things I bought to Soonpo.

Inspector George Horspool was examined. His evidence was the same as that given at the Police Court. He was standing in Wellington Street, when he saw the defendant and party pass at 12.30 a.m.

Mr. A. R. Haddock was called. He was chief officer in the Mangerton. He was discharged from the ship on account of this case, as the ship had to leave.

His Lordship said he was discharged by direction of the Harbour Master; he dared say it would be all right for him.

The evidence of this witness was the same as that he adduced before the magistrate.

Sergeant Wm. Stanton was called. His evidence was the same as that given before the Magistrate. He described the injuries the prosecutor received.

By a Juror: Having heard the prosecutor's statement to-day, corroborated as it was by the Chief Officer, I still think that Inspector Whitehead was intoxicated when he came up to the Station.

P. C. No. 18, Thos. Sangster, was called. He was on Charge Room duty, and Whitehead appeared to witness to be under the influence of drink. He was, however, much excited.

The Court was then adjourned till to-morrow at 10 a.m.

OBTAINING MONEY, &c.

Regina v. Tang Achin.
The prisoner was a Chinese Constable and was committed for trial for obtaining money by false pretences from some tax-payers at British Kowloon. The prisoner had instructions to receive the Police taxes from the various inhabitants and it appeared that in several instances he had more than 10 cents to receive; and when the inhabitants paid him in copper cents, he would ask for a cent or two more in order to make up for the depreciation in the value of copper in relation to silver coins. But if he was paid in silver coins, he made no further demand. Under the circumstances the Attorney General entered a nolle prosequi, and his Lordship directed the prosecutors and witnesses to be informed of the reason why the case was not proceeded with.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."

Hongkong, 25th January, 1878.
SIR,—In yesterday's newspaper, I observed a report of the decision of a naval court-martial, convened on board H. M. S. Victor Emmanuel, to try an Assistant Paymaster for "drunkenness and neglect of duty."

It is not often that such proceedings, in China waters, suggest any questions of public importance, but there are some salient points in this case, for the statement of which I venture to ask space in your columns.

The decision of the officers composing the Court seems singularly illustrative of the truth of the proverbial saying that a Court-martial is one of the fairest of tribunals, but the circumstances, under which the accused was brought to trial, must be eminently unsatisfactory to every one who loves our navy and has at heart the honour of the white ensign.

The facts, as detailed in the evidence, seem to have been these:—One evening the Captain of his ship suspected the prisoner of being drunk, and the first lieutenant and doctor expressed their concurrence in his opinion. Without taking any further steps to ascertain the unfortunates man's condition, the Captain placed him under arrest, but released him next day. Nothing more was heard of the matter for nearly six weeks, when the accused was suddenly informed that a court-martial had been applied for. A court-martial was ordered, but in the meantime the ship was paid off, her commission having expired, and the Captain gave the prisoner a certificate of service, in which it was stated that he had been addicted to drinking for a period of over three years. At the trial, the first lieutenant and doctor testified on oath to their belief that the prisoner was drunk on the evening stated in the charge, the evidence of the doctor being especially strong and circumstantial. The case against the prisoner seemed to be fully established, but, fortunately for him, an officer, from another vessel, happened to have been visiting the ship at the time of the alleged offence, and his evidence, awakened in the minds of the members of the Court, a very grave doubt of the accuracy of the observation of the witnesses for the prosecution, who it now appeared had not been on speaking terms with the prisoner for some time.

I should be sorry to suggest that, on the part of the Captain and his witnesses, there was any desire to do injustice, but it must surely afford matter for the most serious consideration, that the conditions of the service, on board our smaller ships, are such that, owing to petty disagreements or more serious quarrels with his messmates, a diligent and efficient officer may at any moment be sacrificed. The position of a paymaster especially is a most peculiar one, and, in the course of his performance of duty, it is easy to imagine that difficulties may arise, which could easily be avoided by some re-arrangement of responsibility. Of course no one would suspect a gallant officer of wilfully misstating facts, but when a man's mind is biased unfavourably towards his fellow, he is very apt to draw conclusions from most insignificant data.

With regard to the statement in the certificate given to the accused on the ship's being paid off, I only remark that it is either true or untrue. If the former, the rules of the service must have been ignored; if the latter, a lasting injury has been cruelly done to an unoffending man.

I know nothing whatever about the parties interested in the case, and draw attention to it, solely on public grounds.

Yours,
VINDEX.
